

CHARMED BY A TINTYPE.

BLAIRSTOWN, N. J., March 23.—The Rev. H. C. Kishpaugh of the Detroit Methodist Episcopal Conference is now visiting friends here with his bride. He tells a romantic story of his courtship and marriage.

Several years ago, while a student at the Blair Presbyterian Academy in this town, a friend showed him a tintype picture of a young lady living in London, England. The picture was that of a daughter of the Rev. Mr. Marsden, President of the Wesleyan congregation, and it charmed the student greatly. It was a case of love at first sight, and he begged an introduction, which was had by letter. A correspondence sprung up between the young people which, after an exchange of photographs, resulted in an engagement.

Last June Mr. Kishpaugh graduated, and November found him installed over a church at Ontowago, Mich. Late in January he sailed for England to wed the girl he had never seen. On Feb. 6 they were married.

They at once started for this country, and are now visiting friends while on the honeymoon trip. The bride proves to be a charming and accomplished woman, and the Rev. Mr. Kishpaugh thanks his good luck which caused him to look at the tintype.

The New York Times

Published: March 24, 1889

Copyright © The New York Times